County considers grant proposal for Sundre Pool

By Robert Magee

Four members Sundre and District Aquatic Society were on hand at last week's County council to ask for the county's support in bringing an 11-year project to completion.

The Aquatic Society has asked for a $200,000 grant to assist in the capital costs of the $2.4 million building.

Board member, Jim McAllister, told councillors that their assistance will enable the project to be completed debt-free

After opening, which is scheduled for November, 2000, the Aquatic Centre will be managed by a volunteer board of directors. The Aquatic Centre will invite councillors to participate as directors

McAllister figures that the percentage of population use will greatly exceed 9%

"Just the school's popula tion alone is 28%," McAllister.

They'll definitely use it and seniors are anxious to get into it as well. Nine per cent is the most conservative number one can imagine."

The Aquatic Society told councillors that they do have an expected shortfall of $50,000 - $80,000 per year. They also said that the estimated total operation costs would be in the neighbourhood of $210,000 a year

County Reeve, Ian Harvie, expressed some downfalls with Sundre's ideas.

'I'm a little concerned about your lack of a business plan; you have some good rough guidelines." said

"I think you are a little short on the $50,000 - $80,000 shortfall. I would think would be more like $75,000 - $100,000 judging by some of the statistics I've seen before. If you are on the 75% of income back level, you're on the higher side of the province. Pools are closer to 40 - 60%, granted I haven't seen what they're like for a while." Councillors did ask if the Town of Sundre was planning on matching the County's $200,000 grant. McAllister said that the Town may not be in a position to give that much out.

"There's no allowance for it," he said. "I didn't get an affirmative answer from Sundre, but I didn't get a negative answer either.

"There is an opportunity to put this together without a loan. We'd be as healthy and as ever," McAllister

Councillor Pat James asked hat's wrong with having the Town financing the project.

"I didn't want the Town to run this," replied McAllister. "We're not asking you to give something to the Town, we're a partnership asking for where you have a say how things are run.

This is not a town under taking, this is a community undertaking," said Board mem-Ted Kostenuke.

Golf club break-ins linked

Didsbury, Sundre, Carstairs targeted

By Dan Singleton

A series of break-ins at golf courses across west central Alberta over the past two months, crimes that have resulted in thousands of dollars being stolen, are likely the work of the same individuals, according to RCMP.

We believe they are all linked," Didsbury RCMP Sgt. Ron Platz said Monday.

Over the past thirteen weeks, courses at Sundre, Didsbury, Carstairs, Water Valley and Madden have been burglarized, with cash and merchandise stolen, he said.

The total amount of money stolen has not been released, but is certainly in the thousands of dollars. In each case, the phone lines to the premises were cut during the incidents, said Platz.

During the break-in at the Didsbury club early in June, thieves caused extensive damage inside the clubhouse, said manager Al McCoy.

The latest break-in occurred July 24 in Sundre, where several thousand dollars was taken when the thieves removed a safe from the premises, said Sundre RCMP Sgt. Bill McGhie.

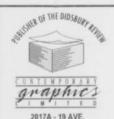

In the break-in, culprits broke a window to gain entrance. After removing the safe and contents, they stole a truck owned by the shop to make their getaway.

The vehicle was recovered two days later just north of Calgary.

The Carstairs Country Golf Club was entered May 1. A safe was broken into and an undisclosed amount of cash was stolen.

The multi-detachment investigation is continuing.

Anyone with information about the break-ins is asked to contact any RCMP detachment.

County and Carstairs negotiating fire agreement

...and other County Council notes

By Robert Magee

The Town of Carstairs and the County of Mountain View are close to reaching a fire agree-

At the February 23, 2000 council meeting, council approved the entering into nego-tiations with the Town of Carstairs for the establishment of a fire authority.

Some terms of the agreement included: the authority is responsible to both Carstairs and County Councils; operating costs of the fire department will be shared on current population ratios of 55% Carstairs and 45% County; capital costs will be shared 50/50 and revenue from highway calls will be used for capital purposes only and will be shared 50/50. However, the Town of Carstairs did not accept the 55% responsibility of operating costs. They wanted an even split, instead.

Assistant Commissioner Tony Martens proposed an amendment that the rate of operating costs be in sync with the census each year. Councillor Pat James wasn't in total agreement saying Car-stairs is getting a lot better use of the equipment, especially since it takes much less time to respond to a town fire.

"Most of the time a fire is put out in town, before the people can even get to the rural fire."

Martens said, "whether we have one fire or 50 fires, we need that fire truck. Whether it takes five minutes or 15 min-utes to get to that fire, we still need that fire truck."

Councillors passed the amendment with all in favour except James.

Twelve Didsbury youths attended a public meeting last week concerning their skateboarding skateboarders and rollerbladers of Didsbury are hoping to establish a committee and eventually build themselves a new extreme sports park. Currently the kids do their tricks and stunts in a designated area behind the Didsbury Memorial Complex. However, they are looking to build their own fenced-in paved area just for extreme sports.

Extreme sporting is a fast growing popular wave around the world. It mostly includes rollerblading, skateboarding and riding BMX's.

At the meeting last week, Rhonda Hunter, Manager of Recreation and Facility Services, told the participants and their parents that they need to form a committee in order to get things rolling. Erin Fischer, Volunteer Coordinator for the Skateboard Committee, said they must have more local volunteers involved, including parents, if building a new park is going to happen. Pat St. John, a father to one of the kids, has volunteered to be the Equipment Coordinator.

Sue Gole, another parent, said she will be in charge of the fundraising and safety issues.

Hunter said some of the things they should focus on now are grant applications, selecof equipment, facility style and fundraising.

The parents and adult volunteers have selected a tentative date to tour a few city's skateboarding parks for August,

County recesses once again on rezoning matter

Olds Albertan

Is the County of Mountain View open for busines

This question and the frank statements put forward by Councillor Gerald Ingeveld left no doubt in anyone's mind about how he would vote on a rezoning application at the next council meeting.

The three hour public hearing on whether or not to rezone 147 acres of agriculture land, located on the corner of Highways 22 and 27, to light indus-trial/commercial was recessed for the second time July 19.

This recess was not expected by council or the more than 50 people present in the gallery, who will have to take more time out of their busy lives to attend yet another hearing.

The issue which has angered many county rate payers began earlier this year when Mark Wright, Olds Land and Cattle Company, put forth an application to rezone this land and build a industrial park for his business, L'il Shavers and many other unknown businesses.

Karen Benjamin and John Heath made the presentation opposing this rezoning. Arguents against the rezoning echoed the last public hearing and focused on preserving agriculture land, stopping farm fragmentation, fear of pollution (walight, air and noise) and traffic dangers. A petition with 211 signatures and more letters eading council not to go ahead with this were brought before council.

Wright's Christopher Davis, an engineer, a groundwater geologist, a planning consultant and a transportation consultant repre-sented the application. Wright was not present.

Pat James, councillor division seven, argued this rezoning would not be a case of farm fragmentation, but smart planning by the county.

think the county realizes the importance of regulating these plans, we know Calgary is getting two miles closer every day. We have to be ready for these developments when they come to us. Some say the best place for these business parks are in towns, well the towns were all built on good farm land at one time too.

"We have to provide leadership, I was told by one of my ratepayers - have the courage to do the right thing," said

Councillor Dave Derksen wished he didn't have to be making this decision.

"Seeing this kind of application makes us all wish we were on holidays right now. I do be-lieve there is a need for industrial parks at this point I can not support the re-designation at this corner because I still represent people. I realize the developer is a people too, but at this point in time I believe this is not the place for this development. I think we should take a very good look at what we are doing to a community. This is a very good development at the wrong place at the wrong time, said Derksen.

Councillor Sheila Lockrem said Derksen took the words out of her mouth.

"This is a very good develop-ment and I hope Mr. Wright will find another place to put the same concept.

Ian Harvie, Reeve, suggested his concerns were keeping peo-ple involved with farming and the agricultural business

The county industrial sites are somewhat less than one per cent of the total area. Eight per cent of the people of Canada produce the raw product and 30 per cent of them live in Alberta. Canada is in difficulty of finding the people to produce this raw product. We have had a number of technical reports stating that this is a very attractive place for a development but people in the area might have a different opinion. This area is an area of increasing change. Today I can not support this application because in my mind I do not have all the answers that I feel comfortable with," said Harvie. Ben Penner, division one, also would not have supported the application which would make the majority of council against the rezoning.

"Whether you are against or you are for, we always fear the unknown. Like our Reeve stated just a minute ago I am not totally convinced that we have heard all of the angles. I can only go for what we know now so I won't be supporting this," said Penner.

Diane Davies, division two, disagreed saying this is no dif-ferent than the Water Valley development which brought the same response from ratepayers was passed anyway.

"I think Mr. Wright is right on target. Mr. Wright is right for a change," said Davies.

After three hours of evidence presented by both sides and councillors remarks indicating how they would vote on the rezoning that day, Davis pointed out this matter could be recessed once more until the Stantec study (which will be completed within weeks) could be brought before council outlining the best areas within the county for future industrial Ingeveld, who was silent for the councillors speeches, finally spoke out and said he will be supporting this application.

We have to put developments like this somewhere! I would hate to see a sign by the Mountain View County saying -sorry we are closed," said Ingeveld. He said that at the last few public open houses what most people asked for were more services and better roads. Increases in tax from this development will help the county do as their rate payers asked.

Benjamin said she and Heath were upset that council showed which way they were going to vote and then having the attorney suggest another recess.

"We thought there was justification for a vote. We are very disappointed," said Benjamin explaining that the presentation and public hearing were taking immense amounts of time from all those involved and that each hearing was at a critical time for farmers to be leaving

Douglas Edward Durand pleaded guilty earlier to charges of uttering a threat to cau bodily harm and assault. He was sentenced by Judge W. Gilbert in Didsbury provincial court on Monday.

The accused had been drinking on Dec. 3, 1999 when he got into a heated argument with the woman at an area residence, court heard. The man then threatened the woman before attempting to kick her.

Durand has a lengthy criminal record, including four previ-ous assault convictions, Judge Gilbert said.

"I'm very sorry," Durand told the court. His defence counsel asked the judge to impose a conditional sentence.

Judge Gilbert rejected the defence request, ordering Durand jailed for five months and two years probation.

A 16-year-old Bowden area girl who smashed another girl across the head with a plastic pop bottle and kicked the victim in the face has been ordered to complete community service

The accused, who cannot be identified, pleaded guilty earlier to a charge assault. She was sentenced on Monday.

The accused confronted the 17-year-old victim outside a Bowden shop on January 29, 2000 at which time a struggle ensued.

During the incident, the accused hit the victim with the bottle and then kicked her.

An ongoing dispute between the parties led to the fight, said defence counsel.

Judge Gilbert handed the girl six months probation and ordered her to complete 10 hours of community service.

Man pleads guilty to assault

A Sundre man who was charged with assault and breach of probation pleaded guilty July 26 in Didsbury provincial court.

Court heard the man, Hank Kamp, got into a dispute with his girlfriend Dec. 12, 1999.

Court heard the couple got into an argument and the girlfriend went to a Sundre motel for the night. When she returned to their residence, she found he had been drinking. He verbally abused the woman before he started pushing and throwing a phone at her

Her right ear and left temple were injured in the dispute.

Kamp received a conditional sentence for a period of one year. Conditions include a curfew and he must keep the peace and be on good behaviour. He will also undergo counselling for anger management.

Kamp was placed on proba-tion in July, 1999 after being convicted of assault towards the same woman.

"I'm very ashamed of myself," said Kamp.

Pick me up lines

Okay, so my Editor, Nicole Smith, is on vacation in B.C. right?

And she is always telling me to vrite a serious editorial, and NOT ABOUT HOCKEY!

I figure what's the point? Almost every newspaper you see, there is an editorial about some big important issue happening in the world. I hear too much stuff about tragedies and fighting that's taking place every day. I like to read some funny editorials, where I can just kick back and relax, and enjoy somebody else's sense of humour.

So I am not going to write about the tornado, or the Concorde that crashed, or the missing boy in Manitoba, or anything that's serious world issue."

Instead, I am going to try and brighten your day by making you laugh with all the corny and lame pick up lines me and my friends have heard over the years. And no, I didn't try and use them!!

**WARNING** Do not try this at home - or anywhere else. - If I said you had a beautiful body, would you hold it against me?

You look a bit down, mind if I pick you up?

You must be Jamaican because you're Jamaican me crazy.

- Is it hot in here or is it just you?

- Do you believe in love at first sight, or should I walk by again?

Is that a space suit you're wearing? Because you're out of this

Just call me milk, because I'll do your body good. You must be tired, because you've been running through my

Why didn't you tell me I was in love with you?

Message from Richard Marz.

The devastation caused by the tornado at Pine Lake will be long remembered especially by the families of victims and the survivors. I would like to extend my sincere sympathy to all those families who suffered the loss of loved ones

Upon visiting the site it was hard to imagine any survivors with such devastation.

I would also commend the army of volunteers from the Pine Lake community and all disaster services personnel who responded as well as the County of Red Deer for the excellent way they carried out their emergeny plans.

We always hope that our investment of time and money and dedication of our volunteers will function properly when a real disaster occurs and I can honestly attest to observing the best possible response by all those involved. A tremendous thank you to all.

Under the 2000 Pine Lake Tornado Disaster Recovery Program, grants will be provided to the victims of the tornado in the amount of $3,000 for each adult and $750 for each child under the age of 16 up to a maximum of $7,500 per family. In addition, the Province will provide assist-ance to facilitate the ongoing counselling and emotional support required by tornado victims, their families, volunteers and emergency response person-nel. The Province will also assist with funeral expenses for the families whose loved ones perished in this tragedy.

The Disaster Recovery Program will provide damaged farms and businesses with re-establishment assistance grants of $15,000, as well as clean-up assistance to a maximum of $40,000. The Government of Alberta will cover all emergency operations costs accrued during the tragedy. including search and res cue, emergency and related health services, police, fire, military, and debris clean up.

Premier Klein said that with this program, the Alberta gov-ernment reaffirms its assurance that the Province will be there for those whose lives have been significantly impacted by a disastrous event. He added that if there are individual circumstances that are not met by this relief program, they will be dealt with on a case-by-case hardship basis. Klein said that this includes farmers who may have suffered loss or damage that would be considered devastating to their ongoing farming operations.

To facilitate the claim proc-ess, letters requesting information on losses will be sent within the next week to those affected by the tornado. Anyone requiring additional information can call 1-888-671-1111 outside of Edmonton, or 422-0300 within the city.

the condition of the Didsbury Memorial Complex for the above show

We found the facility to be in a very dirty condition. We had people from B.C., all points of Alberta, and Sask., showing, and we felt embarrassed and appalled at the cleanliness of one of Didsbury's beautiful facilities.

No pets allowed

By Margaret Fradley

When our children were young we spent holiday times travelling in our tent trailer on this particular occasion we thought we were well organized. My husband had packed and closed up our tent trailer the afternoon before we were scheduled to leave. This would enable us to get on early start the next morning as it was extremely hot weather. Our plans were going well. Our oldest daughter was remaining home to work and look after our family pet, Perky our cat

As scheduled we pulled out early, and it wasn't long before we realized it was proving to be another hot day.

We stopped and had our lunche on the way and later in the afternoon found a suitable campsite. Upon opening the tent trailer, out leaped a terrified, totally dehydrated cat, Perky had crawled into the tent trailer a day earlier, just prior to it being closed-up.

Perky immediately ran off into the bush, our three children in hot pursuit. At that moment we heard a strange rustling in the adjacent campsite, and discovered two black bears tearing at garbage bags left by former campers.

At this moment our children emerged with Perky in tow; we notified the camp warden, who came and fired several shots in the air scaring off the bears.

With the promise of keeping a close eye on our pet other campsites were generous and allowed him to stay.

I had been looking forward to a quiet uneventful holiday; although the beginning was a little "iffy" we had an enjoyable vacation. We can't have too many expectations!!!

Girls Provincials a success

The weekend of July 21, 22 & 23 was bustling with activity in Didsbury and the reason for this was the infiltration of 10 Midget girls softball teams coming to participate in the Softball Alberta Midget "D" Provincial Championship Tournament. The volunteerism of local softball enthusiasts is to be applauded and their time and efforts spent on making this tournament a success is to be admired. It was indeed a pleasure to have the opportunity to work with such a committed and focused group of people - Vicky & Wayne Poffenroth, Kelly & Colleen Brandsgaard, Karen Pieper, and Luella Braun - to name just a few. These people took the bull by the horns and ran with it - the end result being an impressive championship tournament that provided recruitment of many volunteers from within the community, quality umpiring & scorekeeping, quality diamonds. access to refreshments and food. and a great ball tournamnet to be witness to.

The Spitshooters most definately did themselves and the community proud, as well, sport ing the bronze medal and the completion of the tournament!

Didsbury continues to be a leader in hosting provincial level tournaments - hockey and softball alike. The commitment to this initiative from our local sports enthusiasts and volunteers is to be praised.

It is these people who help to make Didsbury the strong sporting and recreation community that it is.

Our department is proud to be able to be of assistance with these events and are fortunate to have so many people dedicating their time and having these high exposure sporting events come to our town and presenting them

Sincerely, Rhonda Hunter, Town of Didsbury Manager, Recreation & Facility Services

The facts on rising gasoline prices from Richard

It seems to happen every summer. Once the sun starts shining and the days get longer, gasoline prices start to climb. If you're thinking that prices seem even higher than usual this year, you're right. Before you point the finger at your local gasoline retailer, con-sider how much the price of oil has in-creased. Crude oil is used by refineries to make gasoline, so changes in the price of oil affect the price of gasoline. Crude oil prices are set in an international market. The price is affected by many factors that influence supply and demand, which in turn have an impact on

These include weather, supply inventories, and political matters, like production quotas set by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) which supplies 40 percent of the world's oil.

Over the last 12 months, crude oil prices have increased by 85 percent, from $16.33 U.S. per barrel on June 1, 1999 to more than $30 U.S. per barrel on June 1, 2000. The cost of crude oil makes up about one-third the price of gasoline, so as oil prices have increased, gasoline prices have increased too However, since oil accounts for only part of the cost of gasoline, gasoline prices have increased more modestly. Other components of gasoline prices include refining costs, trans portation and dis-tribution charges, and provincial and federal fuel taxes.

Fuel costs are rising all over the world in response to higher international crude prices. Still, Alberta's prices tend to be among the lowest in Canada, and Canadian prices tend to be among the lowest in the world

For example, in May when the pump price in Calgary was 61.9 cents per litre, it was 65.7 cents in Winnipeg and 79.4 cents in St. John's. In April, the Canadian average price was 66 cents per

Outside of Canada, in Canadian dollars per litre, the U.S. average price was 58 cents, compared to $1.90 in the UK and $1.46 in Japan.

While Albertans are paying higher gasoline prices, they receive special benefits from high crude oil prices in the form of royalties that other Canadians don't have. Royalties are not taxes, they are shares of produc-tion Albertans keep as the owners of the resource. When the price of oil increases, royalties increase to ensure that Albertans receive full value for their

The 85 percent increase in crude oil prices between June 1999 and June 2000 resulted in an additional $1.3 billion to the provincial treasury, this amounts to approximately $1,486 per household.

Resource revenues were allocated by government towards programs in Albertans' priority areas, like health, education, in-frastructure and debt repayment. Royalties contributed to recent funding increases in these areas.

Some examples are:
• $275 million to build a new children's hospital and reduce waiting lists in Calgary; . $580,000 in scholarships to

Alberta graduate students, and $3.2 million to post-secondary institutions for trades training; over $1 billion for school infrastructure; and a $2.7 billion payment on Alberta's debt.

Natural gas cap

While gas companies and the government profit from skyrocketing natural gas prices, Alberta families are strug-gling to pay their heating bills. In a province blessed with natural energy resources, this is inherently unfair.

On July 1 st, prices for natural gas jumped up again - to $4.382/ gigajoule in Northern Alberta and $5.585/ gigajoule in Southern Alberta. In the recent Edmonton Highlands byelection, voters made it clear that natural gas prices are causing hardship and difficulty

The best way to help Alberta families face this problem is to cap natural gas prices at $3/gigajoule. This would save the average homeowner approximately $12.50/ month immediately and even more money in the winter.

This cap would be paid for by higher royalties on gas exported outside of Alberta. In other words, the gas producers who are benefiting from high gas prices would have to pay slightly more to make sure that ordinary Albertans aren't hurt by those same high gas prices

Without government action, this problem is only going to get worse. They haven't acted yet, but it's too important to let them off the hook and on behalf of Albertans, I will not let them off the hook

Alberta is blessed with natural resources. With higher prices, the government and industry benefit through in-creased revenues and profits. By capping the price for natural gas, Alberta families get a chance to share in Alberta's natural wealth as well.

Stroke - not always just an old man's disease Risks and preventions for women as well

By Dr. John Edmeads

Despite increased awareness about the risk of stroke in women, it is skill considered to be a man's disease. The reality is, however, that stroke is just as common in women as it is in men. What's more, the risk of stroke in women increases after menopause.

creases after menopause.

Almost 60 per cent of the 50,000 Canadians who have a stroke each year are women. And it is not just elderly women who are at risk, stroke is a concern for women as young as 50.

To reduce this number and ensure their continued health, it is crucial for women to be aware of the risk of stroke, what produces that risk - or the stroke risk factors - and what they can do to lessen their risk.

Women-should take simple preventative measures, such as exercising regularly and eating a balanced diet, to reduce the risk of stroke.

Regular visits to the doctor are important health management factors to keep an eye on cholesterol and triglyceride levels, to detect diabetes, and to monitor blood pressure.

And of course, women who smoke should make every effort to stop immediately

fort to stop immediately
In addition, an act as simple as taking an ASPIRIN a day is another preventative measure women who have suffered a stroke should consider introducing into their daily routine to prevent a second or subsequent stroke, after checking with their doctors.

ASA is a well known pain reliever that thins the blood, a capability which has been shown to reduce the chance's of stroke by about 13 to 21 per cent in people who have already experienced a stroke.

It is also important for women to be aware of the warning signs of stroke and seek medical attention immediately when they occur.

These warnings include the sudden unexplained occurrence of: numbness or tingling, especially on one side; slurred speech; impaired vision in one eye; double vision; dizziness or vertigo; staggering or stumbling; or "clumsiness" of a limb.

A stroke occurs when blood flow to the brain is blocked either by narrow blood vessels or blood clots, or when there is bleeding in the brain.

The interruption of blood flow deprives the brain of the essential oxygen that it needs to carry out its usual funcAs a result, vision, balance, speech and movement may be impaired or lost completely. If the blood supply isn't quickly restored in some cases, permanent damage or death may result.

Stroke is the fourth leading cause of adult death in Canada, and a greater percentage of women than men die from stroke.

The condition can be debilitating and have tragic results for those who survive a stroke. In addition to its impact on those who suffer from a stroke, strokes cost the Canadian economy approximately $2.7 Billion a year - $1.5 Billion in direct costs and $1.2 Billion in indirect costs.

For more information about ASPIRIN and its role and proper use in reducing your risk of heart disease and stroke, speak with your physician. ASPIRIN is also effective in relieving tough pain like neck and back pain, the pain and inflammation from arthritis, and even migraine headache pain.

Women and Stroke Quick Facts

· A woman has a 1 in 3 chance of developing heart disease or stroke over her life.

 40 per cent of all female deaths are due to heart disease and stroke.

· Almost 60 per cent of the 50,000 strokes in Canada each year are suffered by women.

· A greater percentage of women than men die from stroke.

The average female hospital stay for stroke is 42 days, as opposed to 32 days for males.

At The Kitchen Table

by Noreen Olson

Sunday Morning CBC's Vinyl Cafe, Stuart McLean did a tribute to W.O. Mitchell. The tribute included W.O. reading from his book, What I did on my Summer Vacation. It's a story about small town Saskatchewan kids who on a hot summer day plan to make a nice cool dugout. To speed things along one of the boys whose father is an engineer, helps himself to some dynamite from Dad's worksite and they blast a hole as big as a ball diamond. An aged and senile Grandpa an outhouse and a budding psychologist are part of the plot. Eight of us were in the kitchen and usually when this group is together there are at least 3 conversations in progress, but for W.O. Mitchell, except for laughter, we were silent. The reading is available on cassette and I guess we will have to get it

When the program was finished I went in search of Who has Seen the Wind. John's friend Robert is an American and does not know W.O. Mitchell. We have most of Mitchell's books but Who Has seen the Wind is the acknowledged classic and I have bought many copies of it so that I can give them to the uninitiated. Some of us had met Mitchell, several of us had attended his readings, some of us read favorite bits aloud. W. O. helped us set the mood for a really lovely day. The steaks were perfect the other guests were equally congenial, the sun shone and the yard was lovely. When most of the guests had gone home we were still in a mood for old favorites and when someone said something about curfew one of us looked up and read Rose Hartwick Thorpe's Curfew Must Not Ring Tonight. I have it with James Thurber's illustrations and it's wonderful. Bessie's lover is to be executed when the bell sounds curfew tonight. If she can keep curfew from coming she feels sure that she can get a pardon from Cromwell tomorrow. She leaps from the top of the ladder, grasps the bell's tongue and hangs on for dear life. The sexton is deaf and does not realize that the bell has been silenced. Cromwell shows up in the nick of time and ... "Go! your lover lives." said Cromwell, "Curfew shall not ring tonight."

I had to read The Lady of Shalott. I love the old thing, I love the rhythm, the melody, the spooky drama and the imagery. It's a wonderful story. It was written in 1832. Imagine writing something so beautiful that people read and recite it for two hundred years. But Lancelot mused and recate to two mindred years. But Eatherst inused a little space; He said, "She has a lovely face, God in his mercy lend her grace, The Lady of Shalott."

On a Boston Subway platform there is a poem by Elizabeth Bishop that refers to the Poem The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck, John recited Bishop's poem and then he looked up and read the original The Boy Stood on the Burning. Deck by Felicia Hemans, It's pretty on the Burning Deck by Felicia Hemans. It's pretty awful. It's actually called Casabianca and it's the story of a boy by that name who was about 13 years old and the son of an Oriental Admiral. During the Battle of the Nile he remained at his post after the ship was on fire. When the flames reached the powder the ship exploded and the boy was killed.

There came a burst of thunder sound;
The boy, Oh! where was he?

Ask of the winds, that far around

With fragments strewed the sea,-How's that for imagery? To lighten the mood John found a delightful one called Evolution by Langdon Smith.

Kirsten's friend Harry recited from memory Lost Shepherd by James Thompson, and The Iguanadon. I was impressed. Lost Shepherd is the musing of an Immigrant father as to whether bringing his family to modern ways and temptations was better than letting his son remain in his native land and become a carefree if poor shepherd

I read Alfred Noyes The Highwayman, another one that I really love and I got as choked up as I always do. "And he lay in his blood on the Highway, with the bunch of lace at his throat." I would like to have read The Ballad of East and West, Casey at The Bat, maybe some Robert Service and some Edgar Allen Poe but we ran out of time. It was a very nice way to spend an evening. I highly recommend it

Focus on the Family

QUESTION: My 6-year-old has suddenly become sassy and disrespectful in her manner at home. She told me to "buzz off" when I asked her to take out the trash, and she calls me names when she gets angry

I feel it is important to permit this emotional outlet, so I haven't tried to suppress it. Do you agree? DR. DOBSON: I'm afraid I don't.

Your daughter is aware of her sudden defiance, and she's waiting to see how far you will let her go. If you don't discourage disrespectful behavior now, you can expect some wild experiences during the adolescent years to come.

With regard to your concern about emotional ventilation, you are right in saying your daughter needs to express her anger. She should be free to say anything to you provided it is said in a respectful manner.

It is acceptable to say, "I think you love my brother more than me," or, "You weren't fair with me, Mom." There is a thin line between what is acceptable and unacceptable behavior at this point.

The child's expression of strong frustration, even resentment and anger, should be encouraged if it exists. You certainly don't want her to bottle it inside.

On the other hand, you should not permit your daughter to resorting to name-calling and open rebeldaughter to resorting to name-calling and open rebel-lion. "Mom, you hurt my feelings in front of my friends" is an acceptable statement. "You stupid idiot, why didn't you shut up when my friends were here?" is obviously unacceptable. If the child's viewpoint is approached rationally as described in the first state-ment, it would be wise for the mother to sit down and to understand that viewpoint

She should be big enough to apologize to the child if she was wrong. If she feels she was right, however, she should calmly explain why she reacted as she did and tell the child how they can avoid a collision next time. It is possible to ventilate feelings without sacrificing parental respect, and the child should be taught how to do it. This communicative tool will be very useful later in life, especially in a possible future

QUESTION: My wife and I are keenly aware of how difficult it is to be good parents, and at times we feel very inadequate to do the job.

How does a mom or dad know what's best for a child from day to day?

DR. DOBSON: The most dedicated parents go through times when they fear they aren't responding properly to their children. They wonder if they're overreacting or underreacting, being too strict or too lenient. They suspect that they're making major mistakes that will haunt them later on.

Fortunately, parents don't have to do everything right. We all make thousands of little mistakes — and a few big ones — that we wish we could reverse. But somehow, most kids roll with these blunders and come out just fine anyway.

Let me give you what I consider to be the key to good parenting. It is to learn how to get behind the eyes of your child, seeing what he sees and feeling what he feels. When you know his frame of mind, your response becomes obvious.

For example, when he's lonely, he needs your company. When he's defiant, he needs your help in controlling impulses. When he's afraid, he needs the security of your embrace. When he's happy, he needs to share his laughter and joy with those he loves.

Raising healthy children, then, is not so much a science as it is a highly developed art, and most of us have the natural intuitive faculties to learn it.

Take the time to observe those kids who live in your

If you tune in closely to what they say and do, the feelings behind those behaviors will soon become ap parent. Then your reaction to what you've seen will lead to more confident parenthood.

A post-mortem of the Kosovo mission indicates that soldiers were deployed quickly. However, they did not have adequate firepower to deal with the serious possibility of conflict with the Kosovo Liberation Army. The Coyote, their primary armoured surveillance vehicle, had numerous problems including a dangerous lack of spare parts.

Other reports indicate that our CF-18 fighter fleet lacked modern navigation systems, radios and night vision goggles for pilots. Our airmen had obsolescent 500-pound bombs which lacked the accuracy of laserguided bombs used by our Allies Consequently, our pilots sought to get close to the target before releasing their weapons, and were at higher risk than should have been necessary.

We have to ask ourselves why, in this prosperous, technologi-cally advanced country, would we place our armed forces in harm's way without adequate equipment? How do government spending priorities become so misplaced? How can we afford billions for grants and contribu-tions, but fail to provide the Armed Forces with the person-nel, training and equipment they need? There are no acceptable

Bench Fair happening next month

The 17th annual Lone Pine Bench Fair is coming soon.

The big event is scheduled for August 16, 2000 at Lone Pine Hall.

Jo-Anne Hannah, Chair of the Committee, says she expects a whole lot of entries and lots of great things to come and view

There's going to be stuff from gardens, baking, handicraft, sewing, crocheting, quilting, knitting, photogra-phy, even pioneer skills," said

Hannah

"They will have their eggs, cream, butter and soups." Hannah said that Lone Pine will have a seniors and a juniors

We'll be having a junior arts and crafts section for preschoolers up to 18-year-olds. We are trying to encourage kids to enter."

There will be tons of prizes being given out for all the juniors who enter and for the best of certain categories.

Hannah, who has participated in the past, said she is not entering in anything this year. "I have in the past, but since I've been helping out, this keeps me busy," she said.

Lone Pine Bench Fair had 437 entries last year, but Hannah figures they should significantly increase that number this year.

"It should be better this year, it's more dryer. We have had up to over 700 entries before.

There will be a 30 cent entry fee for all classes except for juniors, who are free

Prize awards are in the amount of $3 for first, $2 for second, and $1 for third in respective class

Lone Pine will also be providing face painting by Didsbury 4-H in the evening, as well as refreshments for spectators. And best of all, admission is free to the public.

"It'll be a very interesting evening," said Hannah. "You'll be amazed at all the flowers and crafts there. Come and check it Brenda Fisher, Secretary of Lone Pine Ag Society, agrees with Hannah, saying she expects it to be a great evening.

"We'll be having the Carstairs Rodeo Queen and Princess out there. It's pretty much always a good turnout in the evening for the viewing," said Fisher.

2000 Alberta Summe Games Bronze Medallist

The 2000 Alberta Summer Games was held just over a week ago in Grande Prairie, and one local Didsbury girl was there to compete

Jaci Trenholm, 15, and her bantam fastball team from Olds travelled north to take part in the Games.

"We were the only team in our zone that entered, so we auto-matically got in," said Trenholm. "We played three round robin games and two final games dur-ing the tournament. We came in second in our pool, and third Trenholm plays first base on her team, the Olds Comets. She has been playing ball since she was four-years-old.

Jaci Trenholm

Trenholm says the Comets held their own in against some tough competitive teams.

We were pretty evenly matched in the games. We played really good as a team, came together really nice," said Trenholm.

"We didn't get down on ourselves when we lost, that was good."
Trenholm said her and her teammates had a blast at the event.

Trenholm said her and her teammates had a blast at the event.

"On Friday evening there was Luau dance and a video dance on Saturday. We had a lot of fun."

Trenholm will be playing fastball next year in Olds on the Midget team, and she plans on continuing to play after high school as well. She will be too old to participate in the Games next year, however, as the age limit is 16.

There were approximately 2,800 athletes, coaches, chaperones and officials who attended the Games in 18 different sports.

Didsbury 4-H member takes in Club Week at College

Cari-Ann Viney, an eight-year member of the Didsbury 4-H Outlaws, went to a six-day camp at the Olds College last month to meet with several other members across Alberta and discuss future plans and goals.

Viney, who is 18-years-old, said it's a fairly prestigious event,

"I would like to be able to go back, but I guess it's good because it gives other 4-H members a chance to go," said Viney.

In order to attend the club week, a member must be nominated to go by their club. Only two members are allowed to go from each club.

I wasn't too surprised I was picked to go," said Viney. "Not too many other people were interested in going. I thought it would be fun.

The theme for the week was, "every second counts." Their theme song was, "It's my life," by Bon Jovi.

"There were about 85 delegates there," said Viney. "We worked into smaller groups and talked about our lives and listened to motivational speakers. These were people who had cancer, suffered traumatic events, had spinal cord injuries, and had learned to overcome them, they were so great. It really makes you think about the choices you make."

Viney said the highlight of the week was definitely listening to the motivational speakers. "It was pretty amazing," she said.

The average age group there was from 16 - 21. They did many different activities throughout the week such as mini Olympics, a masquerade dance and a pep rally.

"At the masquerade dance everyone dressed in costumes relating to the theme, every second said Viney.

"At the pep rally everyone came out team names and team cheers. We also played a life size game of Life.

There was also a talent show, with lots of singing and playing of musical instruments. Viney said her team put on a circus with jugglers.

Viney plans on doing one more year in 4-H, and then after she completes her high schooling, she wants to take something in animal health technology.

"I would like to see a lot more 4-H members get involved with camps and different 4-H things they have available. They can meet a lot of good friends, and 4-H friends are forever. You always run into them someday down the road."

Youth skateboarders and rollerbladers looking for a

volunteer committee
Erin Fischer, Volunteer Coordinator for the Didsbury
Skateboard Committee, has a big task ahead of her.

She is currently attempting to find parent volunteers to act on the board and help get this project airborne.

"Politically, this is a very opportune time," said Fischer.
"Let's give them something to do, let's give them something to be proud of."

Fischer, a mother of two, says she sees a tremendous benefit in building a skating park in the Town.

"We have an opportunity of providing a facility for children to keep them active, keep them mentally healthy, keep them emotionally involved and give them a sense of community."

So far Fischer says there is not much enthusiasm from parents, especially those who do not have children who skateboard.

"We have to be visual. Think of in-line skating, riding BMX's in a new place. I envision this as a long term project with short term goals. We're raising money now for movable ramps and a specific ground to skate on."

Fischer says they need more volunteers to join them on a trip, where they will be driving to different communities to see their skating facility, and gain some ideas on how to structure one. "We need caring parents, non-working parents, who want to invest some time into their kids," said Fischer

They also would like some help in the fundraising area.

"People need to understand that fundraising is just filling out some forms; data entry for a couple of hours. We need parents who are fun-oriented. We need fun ways of raising money. Momentum is critical from here.

Fischer says she is asking for anybody who can donate one hour of their time and up to talk

"We're not talking about a long term, high-cost project. It's a basic investment with lower costs," she said. You can contact Fischer at 335-4608 for more information on the committee.

Theme Songs, Birthdays and Various Vices - The Kitchen Table Collection, Book 6

Noreen Olson, author of At the Kitchen Table, which appears in the Didsbury Review every other week, has just printed her sixth book based out of the award winning column.

"It's a continuing collection of them (columns)," said Olson. Olson doesn't have a favourite book out of the six, she thinks each one is good in its own way. "It's like trying to choose between your children," she explained.

Olson and husband, Ralph, live on their farm west of Carstairs, and have three grown children. Olson is also involved in many different organizations and functions. She is an active member of Alberta Women's Institutes and Sons of Norway. She is past chairperson of the Alberta Rural Child Care Pilot Project, a Marriage Commissioner, a speaker and many other things

Although she leads a busy life, she has no plans to stop writing in the near future.
"Not anytime real soon," she says, "but nothing lasts forever. I have no immediate plans of quitting soon."

This book cover the accumulations of At the Kitchen Table column from January 22, 1991 to August 10, 1993. Olson has now written over 500 columns for her collection.

But Olson says she is yet to run out of things when it comes time to write a column. "Oh quite often I do, I think oh my it's column week. But something always turns up."

Olson enjoys doing a lot of speaking, plus it's a good time to sell her books, she says.

"I do a lot of speaking dinners, workshops and women's day out and I bring my books with me that I can sell," said Olson

If you are interested in buying one of Noreen's collection books, you can pick one up at the Didsbury Review.

Alliance could take Bloc voters

By Dan Singleton

Wild Rose Canadian Alliance rivals Ron Richardson and Myron Thompson each say the Alliance could pull voters away from the separatist Bloc Quebecois.

On Saturday, Thompson said the Alliance as it now stands offers a viable alternative to Quebec secession.

"These people are still Canadians and they're looking for alternatives," said Thompson, adding he is opposed to the secession of any province.

The Alliance has the ability to attract voters now loyal to the Bloc, Richardson said Saturday.

"My thoughts are people in Quebec think much the same as people out here, and they agree on a few issues: lower taxes, a smaller federal government, and they probably agree that all of the province's should have more sovereignty," said Richardson.

Thompson and Richardson are

Thompson and Richardson are vying for the nomination in Wild Rose, a riding that includes Sundre, Olds, Didsbury and Carstairs. About 2,800 Alliance members are scheduled to vote on October 21.

Thompson has represented the riding since winning the nomination in 1993. He was elected to Parliament in 1993 and 1997. Richardson, a farmer from Eagle Hill, is a newcomer to politics.

On Monday, Alliance leader Stockwell Day issued a press release saying earlier reports that he was considering a coalition with the Bloc were 'inaccurate'.

with the Bloc were 'inaccurate'.

"Obviously those who are committed to dividing rather than uniting Canada will not find a home in the Alliance," said Day.

"As long as the Bloc Quebecois remains committed to separating Quebec from Canada, its goals will be incompatible with those of the Canadian Alliance."

of the Canadian Alliance."

Day went on to say, "there are a growing number of Quebecers who may have supported the Bloc in the past that have grown tired of the politics of confrontation, and who want a federal government that respects the provinces and taxpayers.

"I'm interested in working with like-minded people in the future to elect a Canadian Alliance majority government."

The Bloc's principal goal is to bring about the conditions for a successful secession of Quebec from Canada, the party said during the 1997 federal election.

The Wild Rose Progressive Conservative Association, whose candidate finished second to Thompson in the 1997 federal election, said any future Alliance - Bloc coalition would be absurd.

"You can't just say you can still be a Quebec separatist but vote Alliance. These are people who believe in separation for Quebec, so how do they then say we support the Alliance Party?" said association president Margaret Hunziker.

farm until 1944, when Thomas died & wife Phoebe moved to Didsbury where she lived to her passing in 1969. Son Cliff married Angeline Kohut in 1942 and continued farming the home place, raised 7 children, Frank, Bonnie, Dick, Donna, Tom, and Pat and Mike (twins).

Cliff and Angeline still live on the farm and are involved in the farming along with the help of 2 sons, Frank and Dick.

Daughter-in-law Fran Murphy compiled a lovely scrap book commemorating the family life through the cen-tury of farming. Five generations of Murphy's have tilled the soil and garnered in bountiful (and some not so good) harvests of grain and animals and have made a host of friends.Out of town guests were Jenny Faulk (Stringer, Spooner) and Bishops from Penticton also relatives and friends from Chicago, Ontario, Victoria, Serento and Vernon B.C. and points in Alberta.

Best wishes to Dot Steckley who is recovering from a bro-ken leg over a week ago and is in the Rockyview Hospital. Hope you'll soon be home Dot and feeling much better it will be awhile before you can walk on it but time will heal it.

We've had an abundance of rain and a little hail in some areas, weather is really hot in between storms. We're hoping for good weather so that haying can be completed.

The RCMP will be moving out of their current building across from the Town Office to their new location in a brand new building on the corner of 19th Street and Highway 582.

Director of Engineering and Operational Services, Wes Yeoman says things are looking good despite some earlier de-

"It's under construction right We're three weeks behind schedule, but everything is going well. No serious problems said Yeoman.

The new station, which will be 600 square metres, is slated to be finished by December 24, 2000, but Yeoman figures that it could possibly be closer to the middle of January.

Some of the new features include a multipurpose room, a youth cell, a female cell and shower, a male cell and shower, a holding cell, a gun room, an exercise room and a victim services room.

Yeoman says that the construction crew is now starting to erect the steel support beams and they will be starting on the roof next week.

CWB asks for open access on rail lines

The CWB Board of Directors has asked the federal government to change the terms of ref-erence for the Canada Transportation Act review. The year-long review began on July 1, 2000 and will form the basis for future competition in the industry.

The current terms of reference appear to give the railways deregulation without adequate changes to their competitive en-vironment," said Director Ian McCreary

"That is the equivalent of tak-ing the police off the highways and expecting everyone to continue following the speed limit.

The directors sent a letter to the Minister of Transport on July 14 suggesting the following three amendments to the terms of reference of the Canada Transportation Act review

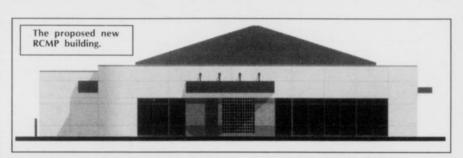

•Full open access must be directly referred to in the terms of reference. The terms of refer ence states that "the review panel shall consider proposals for en-hanced running rights" and other access concepts" but does not mention open access."
•Current railways, such as

CN and CP, should not be given special treatment. The entire grain transportation system, including new railways, has to be considered when developing the competitive provisions within the legislation.

Establishing the legislative framework for new railways to enter the business and provide competitive services is more important than maintaining profits for the current railroads

·Specific reference should be made to allow the development of 'independent" regional rail networks. Most shortline railroads in Canada are captive to CN and AP. "A regional rail network that can stand on its own merits and effectively compete for produc-ers' business is vital to all rail customers including farmers,

Carstairs man returns from six month Agri exchange

By Diane Murphy

Alberta native. somworth returned the end of May from New Zealand after spending six and a half months as an AgriVenture (International Agricultural Exchange) trainee on the South Island. "[The program] helped me see different aspects/methods of agriculture" said Bosomworth. Not only was Peter able to see it, but he was also given the opportunity to really experience life in New Zealand. Living with host parents, Nigel and Jane Reith on their mixed farm 30km from Ashburton, Peter enjoyed the first hand experience of the culture and people. Nigel and Jane own a sheep, deer, dairy grazing and cropping enterprise while operating a large contract-ing outfit. Peter found himself doing all types of contracting work (silaging, bailing, ploughing, cultivation, drilling, and mowing), and helping with the sheep (drenching, drafting, crutching, shearing and tailing). He also helped with the removing antlers and fawning. When asked what dif-ferences he noticed between working in New Zealand and Canada he replied, "the amount of contracting done, the deer farms, and the size of the dairies. New Zealand is similar, but only a miniature Canada. Rucommunities are friendly and closer linked than communities here.

However, the six months was not composed solely of work. Peter was able to visit Australia and the North Island and toured most of the South Island. During his time in New Zealand Peter took in the Young Farmer Club events and gatherings, rugby matches and lo-cal host family BBQs. He also teamed up with locals to play rugby, field hockey, cricket, to do some water skiing, bungy jumping, sea kayaking, jet boatand fly fishing. Fellow trainees from England, Norway, Denmark, Sweden, the United States and of course Canada became Peter's eager travel companions.

The best aspect of the AgriVenture program, according to Bosomworth, was "meeting people and seeing a new country and lifestyle. It was good without any hassel, having work; visa, flight and insurance all lined up for you. I had a blast and made a whole bunch of new friends" says Bosomworth. "It is an excellent program, a great way to meet people, see other countries and experience their lifestyle. I didn't want to come home I had such a good time. I want to see the rest of Australia, I may go back this fall!"

Vanclief announces funding for centre of excellence and new program at Olds College

Agriculture and Agri-Food Minister Lyle Vanclief recently announced federal contributions of $350,000 to the new Olds College Centre for Innovation and $414,000 to the new Olds College Precision Farming program — initiatives which are expected to give a substantial boost to the province's agriculture and agri-food industry.

The funding comes from the Government of Canada's $60 million-per-year Canadian Adaptation and Rural Development (CARD) fund.

"These programs will help Alberta's agriculture and food industry take maximum advantage of the latest technologies, the latest research and the latest market and training information," said Mr. Vanclief.

"The future prosperity of Canada's agriculture and agrifood industry will be decided largely by its ability to harness the latest information and research developments."

"The Precision Farming Program will help to expand the vision, competency, and quality of life of people in the industry, a goal to which the CARD program is profoundly dedicated," said Marilyn Thomas, CARD fund Chair, for the Agriculture and Food Council which distributes CARD funding in the province. "The Centre for Innovation project will help to promote and develop innovation in Alberta which is important to provide more opportunities for entrepreneurial, managerial, innovative and technical training."

The Centre for Innovation will feature two core initiatives including an innovation and agri-business program and an applied research and commercialization program. The agri-business and innovation program is set up to conduct agri-business, industry-spe cific training and feasibility studies. Important to this area of the overall program will be the development of a new Alberta agri-product and technology database to enhance the ability to disseminate innovation information and new opportunities to industry

The applied research and commercialization program will have at least three full-time scientists who will conduct applied research in key areas, coordinate technology transfer and commercialization of new products and provide labs and linkages with Alberta research groups.

Alberta research groups.

The CARD funding will help create a Centre for Excellence in the development and delivery of specialty precision farming training and applied research at Olds College. The project's strength is that it will offer the latest technology in agricultural practices and funding, that when combined with strong industry investment, will help it become a self-sustaining program at the College.

Information generated through the Centre will be offered to a wide range of people including full time, extension and non-credit students.

Dirty Mothers looking to win Nationals at home field

The Dirty Mothers ing to get down and dirty this weekend.

That is when the women's slow-pitch Nationals take place. It's what every team in the country plays for. It's the Stanley Cup of women's slow-pitch. And it's in Calgary this year. The Dirty Mothers are looking for the home field advantage to help them win it all.

"We've got talent," said Penny

Clazie. "I'm hoping it's our turn. We've got home territory.

Being in front of the home town crowd, there will be lots of expectations," added Rhonda

"It'll be pressure, but it will be nice to have the cheering," said Janet Gole.

The Dirty Mothers, who finished first in the D division in Alberta, are in Pool A. Along with them are two first place teams in the C division, one first team in the E division another first place team in the D the D division - also from Alberta - and a 39th place team in the D division.

There is only one first place team in Pool B, however. The Dirty Mothers say that the stacked Pool A can be to their advantage though.

"It can be to our benefit, we play all the good teams first," said Hunter. "We're going to take it as a challenge. We know if we beat out all the first place teams, we'll be sitting good."

The top three teams in each pool after the round robin will receive a double life, which means they have to lose twice before they get knocked out of the tournament. The remaining teams only have a single life.

The Dirty Mothers believe they have the skills to go the distance, if everyone plays their

'We have mega talent," said

We have heavy hitters and base hitters," said Gole.

"We've got about five players who can hit doubles and triples consistently," added Hunter.

The key to a successful run at Nationals?

"Consistent batting," said

Fan support, they can really motivate the team," said Hunter.

The tournament gets under way on August 4 at 9:30 a.m. at Jaycee Park, where the Dirty Mothers play all their regular season league games. Jaycee Park is located at 1899 39th Avenue, N.E., Calgary.

 The Dirty Mothers will play the Chix with Stix from Manitoba first on Friday morning at 9:30. Their next game is Friday afternoon at 12:30, where they vill do battle with the B.C McCracken Wizards.

The playoff round begins Sunday morning and the Championship games are Monday morning. The Mothers hope to see you there cheering.

A Cappella band coming to Olds

One of today's most innovative vocal bands? STREETNIX the four-member a cappella band from Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, has worked within the parameters of a cappella music to create the sounds of a full band using only their voices. Their third album. Ignition released in 1998, was recognized by the international Contemporary A Cappella Recording Awards as "Pop/Rock Album of the Year".

Formed in the fall of 1991 by six students from the University of Saskatchewan, STREETNIX spent its early days performing mostly traditional a cappella standards at conventions, banquets and coffeehouses. Soon, STREETNiX transformed into a five-piece band that expanded its performance venues to include public schools and community shows. In the summer 1993, STREETNiX recorded its first CD, Listen, with producer Don Schmid, drummer for The Northern Pikes. To date, Listen has sold more than 20,000 copies, making STREETNIX one of Saskatchewan's top-selling independent bands

In 1994, STREETNIX began touring full-time, embarking a successful tour of fringe festivals. public concerts and exhibitions from Ottawa to Vancouver. After a fall and winter tour of more than 200 performances in Saskatchewan and Alberta. STREETNiX evolved into its current four-member

In late 1995, STREETNIX released their second CD Time Permitting, of which over 10,000 copies have been sold. This album included a few more original songs and more interesting arrangements as the band began to explore the more creative realms outside of traditional a cappella. That spring, a suc-

In the summer of 1998, STREETNIX created an album that has become a landmark a cappella recording. Original songs were scored, and two professional producers, Darryl Neudorf and Dave

Mockford, joined the production team. In late 1998 Ignition was released, generating a wave of enthusiasm from the public and the media. Ignition has since received airplay on college and commercial radio stations across Canada, the United States, and Europe. To date, Ignition has sold over 40,000 copies.

The new show, featuring songs from Ignition, began in the fall of 1998 and continues its successful continental tour in the year 2000.

STREETNIX has appeared on Canadas Gabereau Live, twice on Vancouver's Breakfast Show, along with many other television and radio shows.
